MOVES LIKE ADAM!

As lead singer for pop super-group Maroon 5, Adam Levine is sitting on top of the world—with throngs of female fans screaming their adoration for every “move” he makes. With Maroon 5, Mr. Levine has won three Grammys, dropped insanely huge singles (“Moves Like Jagger,” “Payphone,” “One More Night”), and most recently rocked this year’s Grammy awards, performing the band’s latest hit “Daylight” joined by a drum-beating Alicia Keys for a show-stopping rendition of her hit “Girl On Fire.”

You’d think fronting Maroon 5 would keep Levine busy enough, yet, for the last two years, he – along with Cee Lo Green, Christina Aguilera and Blake Shelton – has been a coach on NBC’s popular vocal competition The Voice. Now, heading into its fourth season, The Voice will mix up its proven formula by having Shakira and Usher sit in for Aguilera and Green, who are taking a break to focus on solo careers. It’s going to be interesting to see how the chemistry among this revamped lineup plays out.

As one of music’s biggest acts, Maroon 5 performs ultra catchy tunes to sold-out venues. Adam Levine may not actually move like Jagger, but he certainly knows what it’s like to transcend from chart-topping rock star to undisputed pop culture icon.
